A WORTHY INSTITUTION

Fessenden Academy will open its doors for the fall term the first Monday in September. Eleven competent instructors have been engaged by Principal Joe L. Wiley to assist him in the thorough work this splendid institution is doing for the colored youth of Marion and contiguous counties.

In anticipation of the opening the buildings are to be painted and everything referring to them put in first class condition, to conform to the thorough system of business that prevails under Professor Wiley's able and methodical management. The 26 rooms in the new dormitory are being comfortably furnished, and will be a splendid accession to the needs of the growing institution, whose mission is the practical education of the negro, embracing such desirable requirements as agriculture, carpentry, cooking, sewing, domestic science, music, common English and high school branches. To impart thorough knowledge, the instructors have been selected from the graduates of Fisk University, Tenn.; Talladega College, Ala.; Hampton Institute, Va., and other schools of high standing. It can truthfully be said the faculty in every particular will be the strongest this school has ever possessed.

During the absence of Principal Wiley in New England, the plant is under the charge of R. S. White, who is seeing that the grounds and buildings are placed in readiness for the opening day.

Prospects are indeed bright for Fessenden Academy, coming the leading institution of its class in the state, as is attested by the loyalty of its many friends, who are ever on the alert to promote the usefulness and development of the school. Securing the splendid Carnegie building, completed this summer, is evidence of the interest and appreciation Mr. Andrew Carnegie, as well as many other leading white men take in the school. It is also pleasing to note that the leaders of the colored people are appreciative of the service this school is doing for their race. With the completion of the new dormitory there will be room for one hundred boarders at the coming session. With these facts before them, it should be the aim and ambition of every colored family in Marion county, having children of suitable years to attend school, to give them the benefit of the superior advantages which this school can give. The work in every department is not only thorough and most commendable, but the teaching and status of the school is at a high moral standing, that must leave its impress for good on all who serve in it.

IN TRIFLING VEIN

A Miss Blue, when only nineteen, fell in love with John Chrome, of Racine.

And then they were wed,
And their children, 'tis said,
Are all of a brilliant grass green.

He was caught shooting birds out of son,
And gave to the cop as his reason
That the birds, cooing high,
On limbs nearest the sky,
Had rendered their conduct high trees on.

At Chicago, the other day, Federal Judge Kohlsaat declared illegal all contracts between newspapers and railroads whereby the railroads pay for their advertising in the newspaper. The decision was rendered in a test case in which the Monon railroad was defendant and sustains the Hepburn act and its interpretation by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Trains are running over the newly constructed railroad from Panama City in Washington county, Florida, to Deshaan city. The name of the road is the Atlanta and St. Andrews Bay, and by it a person can leave Atlanta after supper and eat breakfast by the Gulf of Mexico.

Maine democrats in convention assembled at Bangor nominated Obadiah Gardner for governor. His platform declares for re-submission of the prohibition law to the vote of the people of the state, and that will probably be the principal issue of the campaign.

The imperial council of Mystic Shriners, which has been in session at St. Paul, Minn., adjourned yesterday to meet in Louisville, Ky., next year. Edwin I. Alderman of Marion, Iowa, was elected imperial potentate.

Pearcy has a rival in his search for the pole. Lieutenant Shackelford of the British navy has gone on the same quest, and has the advantage of several weeks' start and a specially built motor sledge.

Another bunch of revolutions has broken out in the pesky little Central American republics. The necessity of a protectorate over those frying-pan nations becomes more obvious every day.

The Goulds, Vanderbilts and other New York plutocrats are reducing expenses this summer, consequently a great number of funkeys are out of employment.

A well known dramatic critic visiting Stratford on Shakespeare's birthday and, hearing the clangor of the bells which, from their tower in the old church where the poet lies buried, awake the little town to its devotions approached a wintry headed street sweeper in front of Irving's inn and said: "Who is the fellow they're making this fuss about? I see you have Shakespeare hotels, Shakespeare gingerbread, and only the other day I saw a man driving to town some pigs called 'Shakespeare's best.' Who is he—the fellow who lived in that tumble-down shanty yonder?" The "oldest inhabitant" megaphoned his ear and, wheezing, replied, "I think he writ."

"Oh, he writ, did he? What did he write—books, confessions of a deer stealer, magazine articles—what?" I think he writ for the Bible.

OF COURSE, THEY OBJECT

Three Big Land Companies Trying to Stop Draining the Everglades

Further steps toward hindering the pet drainage scheme of Governor Broward were taken by the service of papers on the tax collectors of three counties by C. B. Bristol, United States deputy marshal, who returned to Tampa yesterday after performing the order of federal court.

Injunction papers were served by Deputy Marshal Bristol on W. C. Langford, tax collector of DeSoto county; C. O. Swanson, holding the same office in Lee county, and C. L. Bandy, of the same office in Osceola county. In each case the tax collector was restrained by order of the federal court from attempting to collect the drainage tax of 5 cents an acre, and from advertising for sale and selling the land in those counties for the collection of this tax.

This is the third set of injunction papers Deputy Bristol has served restraining the collection of drainage tax. This injunction was obtained by the Consolidated Land Company of Florida, the Southern States Land Company and the Empire Land Company, each of which owns land in the three counties named.—Tampa News.

Prof. Joe Wiley, principal of the Fessenden Academy, colored, at Fessenden, Marion county, is north at present, in Boston doing splendid service in the interest of his school, which is the splendid pattern of the Booker T. Washington idea at Tuskegee. Professor Wiley is doing a splendid service for his race.

A Decorated Interior.

Mrs. Graham is an estimable lady whose hobby is house decoration. One day the lady was careless enough to drink a glass of red ink, believing it to be claret. She was a good deal scared when she discovered her mistake, but no harm came to her.

The doctor who was summoned, upon hearing what had happened, dryly remarked to her, "Mrs. Graham, there's such a thing as pushing this rage for decorated interiors too far."—Argonaut.

Memory Training.

If men only realized how great an asset in life is a retentive memory they would take care to see that their children's were properly trained. The simplest method consists in learning every day a few lines by heart. None of our faculties can be trained so easily as that of memory.—Stuttgart Familienblatt.

Her Choice.

"What would you do, dear, if I were to die?" asked Mrs. Darley fondly.

"I don't know," replied Darley thoughtfully. "Which is your choice—burial or cremation?"—London Mail.

IT FITTED HER TOO MUCH

A Chicago Lady Rebuked for Wearing a One-Piece Bathing Suit

Chicago, Ill., July 17.—One-piece bathing suits are barred from Chicago beaches if they are worn by women.

That was shown yesterday when Miss Margaret Potte was politely asked by the management of the Wilson avenue bathing resort to get out of the water and change her costume.

"I will go away, but I think that my suit is just as modest as what the men are wearing."

There was everything about Miss Potte to attract attention. She was a very plump figure, and the man's one-piece bathing suit that she wore fitted her like a kid glove, especially after it was thoroughly wet.

PEEK-A-BOO WITH A SNAKE

Narrow Escape of a Little Child in Sullivan County, N. Y.

Port Jervis, July 17.—Crying because she couldn't play peek-a-bow with a snake, little Florrie Sherman was rescued in time to escape the fangs of a rattler yesterday. The child with its mother has been stopping at a farmhouse near Cocheton, Sullivan county.

The mother placed the child in the shade of a tree while she went to the house for a magazine. The baby is two and one-half years old. Mrs. Sherman left her fan with the baby, and this probably saved its life. When the mother returned she was horrified to see a rattlesnake near her baby.

The child was tapping it on its head with the fan, a palm leaf, and crying peek-a-bow. It was laughing gleefully at the antics of the snake, which would strike at the fan every time the little one struck it. Mrs. Sherman fainted.

Two men ran to her assistance, and while one grabbed the youngster the other despatched the reptile with a croquet mallet. An examination of the snake showed that it was sloughing its skin and was partly blind.

This and the fan unquestionably saved the child. The snake was three feet two inches long.

Pointed With Scripture.

A bachelor rector of a western church was alone in his study when his housekeeper brought him the card of one of his parishioners, a splinter of meatus and charia.

When the lady was seated on the opposite side of his study table the rector looked at her languidly, expecting to hear something concerning parish work, in which she was active. To his surprise an embarrassed silence ensued, during which he vainly sought for something to say.

"Dr. Rank," began the lady at last in faltering tones, "do you think—can you fancy conditions under which a woman is justified in proposing?"

"Why, yes," said the rector, after some deliberation.

"Then art the man?" said the lady resolutely.

She was right.

A Ready Answer.

The captain of a schooner that trades between New York and Savannah is noted for his wit, and on every occasion that offers he loosens his shafts of humor, to the chagrin and embarrassment of his target. Sooner or later the stinger gets stung, and this chronic pun artist is no exception to the rule.

On one occasion when about two days out from New York he approached a group of sailors who were washing the forward deck, and, singling out a big, rawboned Irishman who was experiencing his first taste of sailor's life, he gravely asked, "Can you steer the mainmast down the forecastle stairs?" Quick as a flash came the reply, "Yis, sor; I can if you will stand below and coil it up."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Rough on the Doctor.

One night as a Canadian doctor who lives in eastern Ontario was driving into a village he saw a chap, a little the worse for liquor, amusing a crowd of spectators with the antics of his trick dog. The doctor watched him awhile and said: "Sandy, how do you manage to train your dog? I can't teach mine to do anything."

Sandy, with that simple look in his eyes, said, "Well, you see, doc, you have to know more'n the dog or you can't learn him nothing."

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery"—was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, aided by a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol, so generally employed. So the now famous "Golden Medical Discovery" for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, or biliousness, and kindred derangements was first made, as it ever since has been, without a particle of alcohol in its make-up.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle-wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients have received the strongest endorsement from the leading medical writers and teachers who recommend them as the very best means for the diseases for which "Golden Medical Discovery" is used.

A little book of these endorsements has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different schools of practice, will be found that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with catarrhal discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or long-continued coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and persevere in its use until you give it a fair trial and it is not likely to disappoint. Too much must not be expected of it. It will not perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affections that lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE
Makes Kidney and Bladder Tight

MRS. VIXENHEAD.

The Story of a Berlin Shrew and Her Likeness in Stone.

This quaint equivalent of the German term neidkopf is applied by travelers to an effigy carved in stone and fixed in a niche in the second story of a house in the Heiligengelassestrasse in Berlin not far from the emperor's palace. The neidkopf represents a hideous, harpy faced woman with snakelike curls and tongue protruding in mocking derision.

One day some 200 years ago, the legend runs, Frederick William of Prussia, more familiarly known as Old Fritz, was walking about the streets of the city in the unconventional way he affected when he observed to look through a window and observed a hunchbacked goldsmith hard at work. The king entered the little shop for a chat.

The result of his interview was an order for a gold table service for the royal household, an order that made the fortune of the hunchback. Later his majesty made other visits to the shop to see how the work was advancing, and on one of these occasions he observed a woman in the window of the opposite house contorting her face in the most hideous grimaces and pointing with derisive finger at the crippled workman.

To the king's query as to what all the old woman the goldsmith replied: "It is envy, sire. She is the wife of a rival goldsmith, and ever since your majesty so graciously gave me this order she and her daughter have reviled me."

Frederick William, paternal in punishment as well as in reward, at once investigated as to the ownership of the house in which the shrew lived. He found that it belonged to her husband and therefore reasoned that there was little likelihood of the family moving, an idea that seemed greatly to please his majesty. His next move was to consult a sculptor, whom he commanded to make the bust of a woman with the most shrewish, Xantippe-like face he could imagine. The king then bought and renovated the house in which the hunchback had his workshop, presented it to him and caused the bust to be placed conspicuously above the workshop window.

Thus whenever the envious woman across the street looked forth from her casement the first object on which her eyes fell was this intended portrait of her amiable self.

For more than a hundred years the neidkopf—spiteful vixen head, as one would say in English—stood in proud prominence, a reproach to the envious woman and her descendants. It afterward mysteriously disappeared, but in 1840 or thereabouts it was found in a forgotten collection of bric-a-brac. Frederick William IV. bought the bust for a large price and had it replaced in its original niche, where it stands today.—New York Tribune.

The Senate Band.

The press gallery of the senate does not look unlike a band stand, with its elaborately decorated front, and it is never occupied by the scribes prior to the opening of the proceedings. A young lady seated in the gallery opposite the press gallery had been looking intently at the empty seats for quite awhile. Her curiosity got the better of her, and, going to the doorkeeper, she said, "Mister, will you please tell me when the band begins to play?" The doorkeeper was amazed. "No band will play, miss," said that gentleman. "There is no band. Why do you ask?" The young lady looked disappointed and embarrassed when she said, with hesitation, "Isn't that the band stand?" pointing to the press gallery.—Washington Herald.

Bray's Mythical Vicar.

It is curious to reflect that there are scattered about the world many scores of places whose chief claim to distinction consists in their association with some famous ditty or other. Take, for example, the village of Bray, in Berkshire, always associated with the world famous "Vicar of Bray." The most curious part of the business is that, though Fuller, in his "Worthies of England," asserts that the cleric who is the hero of the song was one Simon Alleen, careful search of the parish registers has failed to substantiate the story.—London Musical Home Journal.

A Strenuous Task.

"Your honor," said the witness, "can't you order a recess?"

"A recess?"

"Yes, sir. I've stood on this stand and told the whole truth two hours on a stretch, and I'm teetotally wore out! I never told the truth that long before—not in all my life!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Shattered Hopes.

He (anxiously)—I understand your father speaks very highly of me? She—Yes, but he doesn't mean a word of it. He—Are you sure of that? She—Certainly. He does it just to torment mother.—Chicago News.

An Eyewitness.

"Have you any witnesses of the accident?" asked the Brentford county court judge recently.

"Yes," was the reply, "my uncle. He is not here because he is blind."—London Telegraph.

Take Care of the Pennies, Etc.

"Make anything out of that deal?" Gobsa Gobsa inquired.

"Only a million," Myduss gloomily replied.

"Well, every million counts."—New York Press.
